

UČKA NATURE PARK

Učka Nature Park spreads over the mountain Učka and part of the mountainous plateau of Ćićarija, and is located along the north Adriatic coast on one of the northeast points of the Mediterranean.

It was founded in 1999. because of its specific relief and the closeness of the sea, geological structures, and distinctive climate, as well as the cultural heritage with archaeological findings. To this must be added other rich habitats such as meadows and other anthropogenic ones inhabited by a vast number of endemic, endangered, and protected plant and animal species, making it one of the most distinguished biodiversity points in Europe.

POKLON VISITOR CENTRE

The Poklon Visitor Centre is the new main destination for all visitors to the Učka Nature Park. The central point is the interpretative multimedia exhibition, which in modern and interactive way presents natural, cultural, and historical values of Učka, Ćićarija and surrounding area, with an accent on its preservation and protection.
